GOVERNORS STATE UNIVERSITY

Celebrating the Past, Charting the Future

When Governors State University was founded in 1969, change was in the air. The Civil Rights, anti-war, and women's movements transformed society and altered everyone's perspective.

Now, the nation is again facing great challenges. The many calls for change at all levels of society have led GSU, once more, to a renewed commitment to serve students and the community.

When the first GSU students came to class in bellbottoms with flowers in their hair, they were met by classrooms without walls and coursework without grades. While today's programs have more structure and rigor, GSU remains dedicated to the educational innovation and experimentation that guided the university in its early years. The ideal that drove the initial design of GSU – that all students were entitled to an affordable, accessible education – has remained constant.

To fulfill the diverse educational needs of students and the shifting demands of society, GSU has adapted, innovated, and developed its degree and certificate programs. Currently, the university offers bachelor's, master's, and doctorate programs that not only create qualified personnel to fulfill today's employment opportunities, but prepare graduates for the demanding careers of the future.

The university has opened its doors to the community, inviting everyone – area residents, current students, alumni, retirees, and visitors – to celebrate academic achievement and accessibility. GSU has remained true to that early, guiding vision and is today everything it was meant to be – the educational choice for a powerfully diverse, professional, and non-traditional student body.

Honorary Degree Candidate

Peter Schjeldahl

Peter Schjeldahl has spent his life observing the world, its art, and its people. He has taken those observations and keenly crafted them into poetry, criticism, and educational opportunities.

Schjeldahl is a product of the Midwest. He was born in North Dakota and raised in Minnesota. He attended Carlton College and The New School and began wielding his pen as a reporter for newspapers in Minnesota and Iowa.

After a year in Paris, he moved to New York City in 1965, and began writing art criticism first for ArtNews and later for The New York Times, The Village Voice, and 7 Days. He is currently chief art critic for The New Yorker.

Using his keen insight and clear eloquence, Schjeldahl invites his readers into the world of art. He maps a clear path to the understanding of complex visual ideas for both the novice and experienced art connoisseur. His writing is elegant and spare without oversimplification. His observations are compelling. He has no agenda but to help his readers find their connection to the art he reviews.

He shared his observations and appreciation in a narrative describing the Nathan Manilow Sculpture Park. His essay, A Park for the Prairie God, appears in a 1987 catalog describing the park setting and its sculptures. His essay eloquently expresses the unique integration of art, education, and nature found on the grounds of Governors State University.

Schjeldahl has published five books of poetry and four books of criticism. For four years, he taught a seminar for studio seniors in the Department of Visual and Environmental Studies at Harvard University.

He has received the Clark Prize for Excellence in Arts Writing from the Clark Art Institute, the Frank Jewett Mather Award for excellence in art criticism from the College Art Association, and a Guggenheim Fellowship for his nonfiction literary contributions.

As a poet, critic, and educator, Peter Schjeldahl has used words to enlighten and engage his readers and students and encourage them to open their eyes and minds to the new, the different, the exciting, and the unique.

Student Speaker

Bryce Johnsen

Student Commencement speaker Bryce Johnsen says he attended Governors State University for all the right reasons. The school was close to his Park Forest home. It was affordable. His credits from Prairie State College transferred, and GSU had the degree program he wanted.

What he found when he got to GSU was more than educational opportunity. He found enlightenment, direction, and empowerment. Through his education at GSU, Bryce developed a different perspective on the world and formulated his own direction. Education, according to Bryce, gave him more choices by exposing him to new ideas and differing points of view.

In the short time he has been at Governors State University, Bryce has earned more than his Bachelor of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies. He has earned the respect of his professors, the university administration, and fellow students. As the elected student representative to the GSU Board of Trustees, Bryce played a key role in representing student interests in trustee and administration discussions.

Bryce provided a student perspective during the recent Higher Learning Commission review. He also served as a volunteer student mentor in the interdisciplinary studies program, which led him to pursue his goal of becoming an academic advisor. He is currently studying for his master's degree in communication and training at GSU.

"Education is empowering. I want to help people develop their direction and encourage them not to be afraid to learn about themselves," said Bryce.

Bryce currently interns in the GSU Office of Admission and was recently elected as a member of the GSU Student Senate.

Bryce believes that one of the most important lessons he has learned at GSU is how to become part of the decision-making process—to question, analyze, and think critically to formulate a solution. While he remains focused on his studies, he is also determined to be an active and contributing member of the university community.

"When I got to GSU, I realized why education is so important and how it can be the key to success. Many people fear that they don't have the ability to achieve great things, but they can do anything if they put their minds to it. I learned a lot about myself at GSU. Education gives people the confidence to make a difference."

Academic Regalia

During the commencement ceremony, students and faculty wear academic costumes indicating the wearers' degrees, colleges/universities, and fields of study.

The Cap

The black mortarboard type is the most common cap worn. Degree candidates wear cap tassels that are black and white, the university colors. Colors worn by the faculty vary according to their fields of study.

The Gown

Gowns are of three kinds. The bachelor's gown is relatively simple, with lines falling straight from a fairly elaborate yoke. Its distinguishing characteristic is the long pointed sleeve. Braided silken cords are worn by students who have achieved special scholastic recognition: gold signifies high honors; white, honors. The master's gown has sleeves, with a back end extending down below the knee in a crescent shape. The doctor's gown is an elaborate costume, with velvet panels down the front and around the neck, with three velvet bars on the bell-shaped sleeves.

The Hood

The official colors of the college or university from which a degree is conferred are represented in the lining of the hood. For each field of study, there is a corresponding trim color. The trim colors for master's hoods are as follows:

Accounting.....	Drab
Addictions Studies	Salmon Pink
Analytical Chemistry	Golden Yellow

The Mace

The governor's mace, carried by the marshal who leads the academic procession, is a symbol of the authority of the university as a degree-granting institution. The legal authority of the university is grounded in the intellectual authority of the distinguished faculty who follow in the procession.

In antiquity, the mace was a weapon used to establish the “authority” of the physically strong. Its transformation into a symbol of intellectual authority is both a tribute to and a reminder of the civilizing force of a university’s teaching, research, and community service functions.

Engraved on the four side-panels of the governor's mace are the seal of the State of Illinois; a cardinal, the state bird; the seal of the former Illinois Board of Governors Universities; and an inscription which reads “The governor's mace, a symbol of tradition and authority of Governors State University, dedicated to the search for excellence in the pursuit of truth, knowledge, and the love of learning. Presented by Peter Levin, friend of the university, June 2, 1979.”

Atop the mace is a silver rendition of the university logo. The three sides of the “triangle” symbolize the university’s teaching, research, and community service functions. The three lines visually suggest the shape of a rocket, reminding us both that the university was founded within days of Neil Armstrong setting foot on the moon and that the university is a hope-filled, pioneering community, committed to a better future for all men and women. The circle symbolizes the fact that the university is, indeed, a community. Finally, the fact that the tips of the triangle reach beyond the circle indicates the university's outreach into the region, state, and nation and its commitment to teaching, research, and community service.
